You get to learn things you can't learn in any other WU class. You challenge yourself with critical thinking and expressing yourself in the best way, which is essential for a future career.

It is a very good combination of: leaving your comfort zone, applying philosophical theories in real life, advance in your verbal reasoning and get closer with a group of students for four courses.

It gives you the opportunity to look at certain topics from another perspective; i was interested in every single one of the topics; i think this type of course should be mandatory in a business school

Why? Competencies and opportunities after the specialization

As future decision-makers, the students that choose this specialization will broaden their intellectual capacity to deal with fundamental problems and develop a repertoire to solve them. Students will be prepared to either continue on with master studies in governance, leadership, sustainability, or more general management; alternatively they are well-equipped to work in C-level support functions, consulting firms, or departments such as HR, ESG, sustainability, CSR, risk and compliance.
